Wets Are Perfecting Plans For Dry Enforcement Modification

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—Declaring the results of the recent election were a strong indication that public sentiment favors repeal of the Volstead act, a score of state secretaries of the Association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment today perfected plans for modification of the dry enforcement law and eventually repeal of the eighteenth amendment at the closing session here of a two day conference.

Resolutions providing for the working out of a plan for dispensing alcoholic beverages under the regulation of states and others directing the presentation to congress of bills for amendment of the law were adopted at the closing session here of a two day conference.

Although the association was formed for the special purpose of opposing the repeal of the prohibition amendment, its executive committee had adopted a resolution opposing the restoration of saloons to legitimate manufacture and sale of wine and beer is permitted.

Wet delegates expressed indignation over what they declare overhanging victories for the "wet" forces in the recent elections and they do not intend to affiliate with either the Democratic or Republican parties at present.

W. H. Stratton, general director of the association said that Congress Hill of Maryland and Senator Edwards of New Jersey would be sponsors for the association in the house and senate.

He asserted that the body has 150 members and is in good condition financially.

He said no contributions were accepted from interests formerly in the trade. Most of the funds of the organization, he explained are raised by memberships of $1 each.

At the closing session of the conference, the organization was reorganized, and the new constitution was adopted.

Convicted Traffic Violators Forced To Attend Funeral Of Child Victim

CLEVELAND, O., November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Six convicted traffic law violators, accompanied by two policemen, were given an object lesson on reckless driving when they were ordered today by Municipal Judge Sawchuk to attend the funeral of Catherine Gibson, aged seven, who was killed by an auto Saturday night while crossing the street in front of her home.

In addition to attending the funeral, five of the men were given fines and a sixth, who was charged with driving while intoxicated was given a thirty day jail sentence, fined $30 and costs and deprived of the right to drive the car for one year.

Rev. Father Hager, who delivered the funeral sermon, took as his text the eighteenth chapter of Saint Matthew: "Take Ye Heed That Ye Harm Not Even The Least of These," and the fifth commandment "Thou Shalt Not Kill."

The judge stated that he intends to follow the same policy in the future and that he will send traffic law violators to morgues, hospitals and funerals to view their victims.

One hundred and fifteen persons have been killed in Cleveland so far this year by automobiles.

The "funeral sentence" was the first of its kind on record. "You men deserve to witness one of the many scenes of tragedy which careless driving has brought about," the judge declared in announcing the sentence. The little girl was killed by speeding motorists as she attempted to cross the street. The judge's funeral sentence is the most sensational that has thus far been developed in a campaign of court against reckless driving. It eclipses the Detroit plan of escorting violators through hospital wards of injured children.

When Hazel Stefferman was arrested recently in Kansas City, she is alleged to have told police secrets by which she lured married men into the hands of a hold-up gang. "I would plant myself along a boulevard," police say she told them, "give an automobile driver 'the eye'—and the rest was easy. I'd always try to get a man that was latched because he'd be afraid to talk."

Miss Pierce married Lyle Smith, a village youth of her own age, after the verdict was returned. The grounds for the suit were occurrences when she was sixteen years old. The plaintiff's husband was gardener on the Pierce estate.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—As the Somerset county grand jury—21 men and three women—prepared today for its second session upon the mass of evidence surrounding the Hall-Mills murders, the name of a new-found witness appeared among the "stars" upon whom the prosecution pinned its hope for indictments.

The name was that of George Sipe, a dealer in pigs, whose movements on the fateful night of September 14, have caused detectives to bring him forward as the most likely corroborator of the hitherto unsupported tale of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman."

Evidence upon which the grand jury may designate the slayers of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, his choir singer, remains to be adduced. Yesterday's session of the jury, its first, was looked upon by the prosecution as only the setting of the stage.

In the list of principals the name of Mrs. Gibson, the "pig woman," now appears most prominent. Next comes the name of Sipe, the "pig man," whose overbearing rise to importance, makes him one of the mysteries of the case.

After their trail a long list of witnesses, 12 of whom appeared before the jury yesterday, and at least ten are scheduled to testify today. These include two New Brunswick policemen, a neighbor or two of the principals in the tragedy, numerous citizens and members of Rev. Hall's church, St. John the Evangelist, detached soldiers, county officials and possibly newspaper men.

Special Prosecutor William A. Mott has not announced whether Mrs. Hall, widow of the rector, will be permitted before the jury as she has requested, nor would he reveal his plans for obtaining record for the testimony of Nellie Lo Russell, the waitress, who has claimed to be able to refute Mrs. Gibson's "eye-witness" story of the slayings.

Challenges Foes Of Measure To Meet The Issue Squarely

WASHINGTON, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Enactment of the administration merchant marine bill was urged upon congress today by President Harding as necessary to relieve the government of present "staggering losses" in operation of the war built merchant fleet, and to establish a program of assured shipping to serve the nation in war and give a guaranty of commercial independence in time of peace.

Personally addressing a joint session of the house and senate, the executive declared an actual monetary saving to the government would result from the proposed law. He challenged every insinuation of favored interests and the enriching of the special few at the expense of the public treasury. The legislation, he asserted, automatically guarded against enrichment or perpetual bestowal.

"If success attended, as we hope it will," he added, "the government outlay is returned, the inspiration of opportunity to earn renials and American transportation by sea is maintained."

The president said concern about the American merchant marine policy was not limited "to our own domain," adding that the maritime nations of the world were "in complete accord without the opposition here to the pending measure."

He declared these nations had a perfect right to such an attitude, but that he wished to stress the American viewpoint which he said should be the viewpoint from which one sees American carriers at sea, the dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war.

Mr. Harding declared it would be most discouraging if a measure of "such transcending national importance must have its fate depend on geographical, occupational, professional or partisan objection. A commercial eminence on the seas and ample agencies for the promotion of carrying of American commerce, he asserted were of no less importance to the people of the Mississippi and the Missouri valley, the great northwest and the Rocky Mountain states than to the seaboard states and industrial communities inland.

"It is a common cause, with its benefits commonly shared," said he. "If government aid is a fair term to apply to authorizations aggregating $75,000,000 to promote good roads for market highways, the president added, it is equally fit to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of American maritime highways on the 'salted seas.'"

As to present government operations of the shipping board fleet, Mr. Harding said there was the unavoidable task of wiping out a 50,000,000 dollar annual loss and losses aggregating "many hundreds of millions" in worn out, sacrificed or scrapped shipping. He called attention that the government ships were being worn out without any provision for replacement and that a program of surrender and sacrifice and the liquidation which he declared would be inevitable unless the proposed legislation were enacted would cost scores of millions. "The cost of the proposed legislation giving direct aid, he said with ocean carrying maintained at the present average would not reach $20,000,000 a year, and the maximum direct aid if American shipping were so promoted that it carried one-half the nations deep sea commerce would not exceed thirty millions annually.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—The administration merchant marine bill with amendments agreed to yesterday by Republican members, was formally reported out by the house merchant marine committee today, without a record vote, while President Harding was arranging to go to the capitol and address a joint session of congress in the interest of the legislation.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Delegates to the Lausanne conference, with the preliminary oratory concerning the close relations of Great Britain, France and Italy behind them, faced this morning the real test of the strength of the ties which spoke for the three powers have indicated.

The conference members met in private session today for purposes of organization and to start the actual work of making peace with the Turks.

For centuries Turkey has been able to protect herself by getting European nations to quarrel among themselves over Near Eastern questions. The rivalry of France, Italy and Great Britain for supremacy in the Levant has been the protection of weak Sultans in the past and it remains to be seen whether it will also be of service to Mustafa Kemal Pasha and his Angora associates.

Ismet Pasha and his associates of the Turkish delegation to the conference appear less confident than when they arrived and the feeling is growing that they will reduce their program materially in the hope of restoring peace and reestablishing trade relations with the outside world. It is becoming evident that they are beginning to realize that it was Greece and not the great powers of Europe which they defeated in their recent successful campaign about Smyrna.

Steamer Capsizes; 80 Are Drowned

MEXICALI, LOWER CALIF., Nov. 21.—(By the Associated Press)—A. Libreau owner, and Captain Gomez, master of the Steamer Topolobampo, which capsized Sunday at La Bolla, on the Gulf of California, sixty miles south of Mexicali, with a loss of life estimated at 80, were to be arraigned here today on charges of negligence.

Last reports said 21 bodies had been recovered and that search was being made along the coast on both sides of the Gulf for others. Burials followed closely the recovery of the bodies.

Soldiers dug a long trench above the beach line and the only rifles were military.

It was said by officials that Captain Gomez was making his first voyage into the upper reaches of the gulf and had not sufficiently familiarized himself with the problems of navigation in that section.

Although only eighty-six passengers were listed, it was said, it was improbable it ever would be accurately learned how many persons had crowded on the small steamer, as many of the men known to have large families with them had listed only their own names. Most of the families were said to have more than six children.

Military authorities took charge of the situation and decided it was "out of the question" to attempt to remove the bodies of the victims because of the desert heat. So the funerals were prompt and strictly military, as there was no minister or priest to offer religious rites.

The Topolobampo is said to have capsized when stuck bow-on by a wave 20 feet high.

Two bodies recovered were a woman and a child huddled to her breast. Twenty-four survivors, included nine women and six children on their way to Mexicali, Lower California. The Topolobampo, a craft of 36 tons displacement, went down when broken in two in the middle by a wall of water twenty feet high, which followed the tide from the river.

The steamer Mexicali, inbound from Guaymas, was called by wireless from La Bolla, and went to the rescue, saving several persons. A greater part of the lost are women and children.

SHOOTS AT ENEMY THROUGH DOOR; WOUNDS STEP-FATHER

Believing that William Cartmell, his step-father, who was at the front door demanding entrance, was Neville Brown, a young man who had threatened his life, Benjamin Morgan, 19, fired through the door, wounding his step-father in the left breast. Cartmell was rushed from the scene of the shooting, 314 Third street, to Mercy hospital where it was found that he had suffered only a flesh wound, the bullet not striking any vital organs. It entered the left breast near the third rib on the left side. His force had been checked by passing through the door.

Morgan claims that Neville Brown, who also lives at 314 Third street, had threatened his life and he thought it was Brown demanding entrance. When the step-father knocked at the door Morgan demanded to know who it was but the step-father did not answer. Morgan says he then fired over his head to scare the man away, but when he tried to break open the door, he fired again lower down.

The police were called at once and were on the scene within a few minutes.

In their investigation, the police learned from neighbors that several shots had been fired earlier in the day in the yard back of the house. Morgan claims that Brown has accused him of giving refuge to Brown's wife, which Morgan denies. All the men are timber workers and have been working in the hills near Lyra in the eastern part of the county. Morgan is held at the city jail for investigation. He turned over to the police the .38 calibre revolver he was using.

W. O. W. Mardi Gras Opens; Proves To Be Splendid Attraction

Something out of the ordinary had been promised the public when the Woodmen of the World Mardi Gras and winter festival opened at the Winter Garden last night and that is what it was, something entirely new in the way of entertainment. The big hall is inviting with its wealth of varied colored decorations and to explain the appearance of the place in a few words one must say that it is a regular fairyland.

The various attractions offered those attending last night met with instant approval, there being big entertainment for all through the entire evening. The raffle-like attractions offered last night were well received and made a decided hit with the good sized crowd. The raffle-like features are to be changed nightly. The Mardi Gras, given under the auspices of the Portsmouth and New Boston Woodmen of the World, to be held all week.

All during the evening music was furnished by Brunfield's Blue Grass Jazzers. This orchestra will also be present all week.

Police News

Dunley Lewis, 16 years old, was sent to juvenile court by reason of his age when he appeared before Judge McCall in Municipal court Tuesday to answer to a charge of violating traffic regulations by alleged driving past a stopped street car on Eleventh street Monday and hitting and maiming Henrietta Lewis, 2529 Gallia street, who had just left the street car.

The complaint against the youth was filed by E. E. Hise, special officer for the railroad company.

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing good to girls and so she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then. She is able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. Bunker, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Nothing out of balance will affect the finest clock, causing it to gain or lose. The proper adjustment made, all is well. So it is with women. Some trouble may upset you completely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct the cause of the trouble and all disagreeable symptoms will disappear.

End the pain of CORNS quickly, safely!

Put one on—the pain is gone!

Mrs. Felton Gets Seat In Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Mrs. W. H. Felton, the "grand old lady of Georgia" won her fight today for a seat for a day as the first woman senator.

Without objection from any senator but after a long delay during which the status of her appointment to the senate was reviewed in the light of precedents, Mrs. Felton took the oath of office at the vice-president's desk and wrote her name in the senate membership book.

A large crowd applauded as the 87-year-old woman raised her hand and bowed to the oath administered by Senator Cummings of Iowa, president pro tempore and acting in the absence of Vice President Coolidge. The seating of Mrs. Felton was delayed until an hour and a half after the senate convened by an address in support of her claim by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, and by a recess for attendance at the senate at the joint session to hear President Harding's message.

Mrs. Felton, upon inscribing her name to the senate roll, became a full fledged senator, but probably only for a day, as Senator-elect, M. F. George, plans to take his seat tomorrow.

Want Trains Back

Portsmouth merchants, who are now busy preparing for the Christmas shopping season, are calling up on the Chamber of Commerce almost daily asking if there is any possibility of having the two R. & D. passenger trains taken off several months ago restored.

President Adams Luck of the Chamber of Commerce has written a letter to Mr. D. H. Brooks, of the R. & D. at Cincinnati, requesting an answer as to when the resumption of the train service may be expected. In his communication Mr. Luck states that the people, especially in the winter, better hope now than it was several months ago and that the demand for the train service is greatly in excess of the amount of the Christmas season.

Services Interrupted Until Minister Marries Lynchburg, Va. Couple

"MAN NEEDS HELPMATE," WORDS SPOKEN JUST WHEN COUPLE APPEARED

Henry Anderson—Salesman, Lynchburg, Va.
Miss Mary S. Sale, Telephone Clerk, Lynchburg, Va.
Nathan B. Gilliland—Probate Judge, Portsmouth.

Rev. L. N. Kayser—Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, Portsmouth.
Others in Cast—Mrs. N. B. Gilliland, the Gilliland automobile; and a church usher.
A drama of love and marriage with the above enacting the principal roles was staged in this city Sunday morning when Mr. Henry Anderson and Miss Mary S. Sale both of Lynchburg, Va., slipped away from their relatives and friends and came here, securing a marriage license and having the knot tied in plenty of time for them to return home on the N. & W. train leaving here at noon.

On leaving home they did not figure on having a church wedding with many persons present, but that is just what they had for the service at Calvary Baptist church was held long enough for the marriage to be performed, with Judge Gilliland acting as best man.

The story of the "drama" runs something like this. The young couple arrived here on an early N. & W. train and found their way to the home of Probate Judge N. B. Gilliland, 1727 Highland avenue. He was at Sunday School but his good wife explained that he would be home in a few minutes, if they could wait. Anxious to secure the coveted license they waited. Shortly after ten o'clock the Judge arrived and took them to the court house where the license was issued.

Then the question paramount in the minds of the groom-to-be and bride-to-be, "where is there a minister who will marry us at this hour?" Judge Gilliland realized that it was time for morning preaching service at most of the churches but as it was not yet 10:30 he thought he could get to Calvary Baptist church before the preaching started. Arriving there he looked in the front door and was discovered by one of the ushers and the situation was explained to him. As fate would have it Rev. Kayser had just started his sermon and had just spoken of God creating Adam and that he needed a helpmate and he then created woman.

The usher said that he would speak to the minister and he brought word back from the pulpit that he would stop his preaching long enough to accommodate the couple.

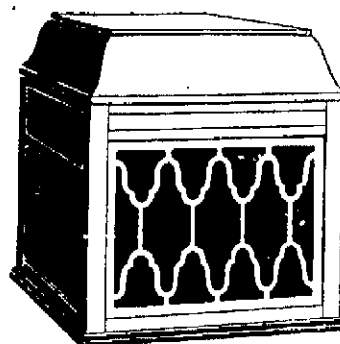

The groom was nervous and said that he did not feel like going up front and would like to have the service performed in the rear of the church where they were standing. The young woman said that she was willing, and the young man when urged by Judge Gilliland, consented to go forward to the pulpit.

Judge Gilliland marched down the aisle with them and acted as best man. He informed the groom that he would pay the minister and that he could reimburse him after they got outside, but the groom pulled out a roll of bills and had Judge Gilliland peel off a five spot and lay it where the minister could secure it later.

In the meantime the now happy bride discovered her purse was missing and they went to the Gilliland home where it was found. Judge Gilliland then took them to the court in plenty of time for them to get aboard No. 16 bound for Lynchburg.

THE LAUGHTER OF ALLAH

Mezin Here Today

M. JONQUILLE, greatest of French detectives, tells this story of a strange and famous Englishman who tells it without giving the man's name. But the conqueror of the Sudan, who later met his death so tragically in the North Sea, was known to all.

It was the love story of the man who lived and died in mystery. The great man was riding through Cairo, his thoughts on nature, when he saw a woman in a white dress in Khartoum. Suddenly he noticed a white woman, accompanied by the resident doctor and her maid, enter a hotel.

He learned she was once a great beauty in the United States who had been unhappily married. She looked exhausted and in her face one read the tragedy of failure.

Go on With the Story

CHAPTER II

MEANWHILE, the doctor after a word of direction, left the woman at the second floor, and she entered her apartment with the maid. She took off her hat, went over to the window and sat down. She leaned on her elbows, looking out her face in her hands, her heart beating fast over her thin blue-veined fingers.

The maid came with excited embarrassment. Madame must go at once to bed. The doctor had ordered it. Madame was taking a chance with her life. Her lungs would congest. She would die immediately. In spite of the dry atmosphere, there was a certain dampness from the Nile at evening.

But the woman gave no attention. She sat quite motionless, looking down at the man on the gray Arab, at the edge of the Place Esbekiya. She could see only the white helmet, the firm shoulders, the nervous horse, and the sun in the street beneath it. She could not see the man's face, but she knew the features of it.

For some days he had been a distinguished figure in the city. Under the visor of the helmet she could reconstruct the face, with those dominating eyes of sword-blade, and the features that in repose seemed modeled over iron.

And there arose in her an appalling sense of loss—a ghastly sense of having been trapped and cheated. There was the destiny for which she was born into the world, and she had been turned another way into the pit. "Ah, God! If she had only had this bronze wall behind her, how far and how wonderfully she would have gone!"

Meanwhile the riot of sound and color poured along the Street Kamel Pasha, drifted across the Place Esbekiya, and entered the Rue Muski on the way to the Tombs of the Caliphs. Now and then, one, exhausted, dropped out of the mad current and fell in the street, swathed in his burnoose like a corpse.

The whole square of the Place Esbekiya was swam with these motionless figures.

Suddenly, far off in the border of the garden of the Esbekiya a giant figure arose from among these ghostly troops, as in a garden of the dead—a creature infinitely old, matted with hair and naked under his burnoose. He extended his arm, and his voice drifted with the vague wind northward as from the desert. It came to the man sitting the gray Arab as from a remote distance; a voice carried on the waves crest of innumerable sounds; a long, wailing, desert cry, weird, every, the words stirred over and blurred.

"O sultan! I will give it to you. I will give it to you. And may I crucify your soul!"

The voice trailed off in a thin, indistinguishable wail, and the matted creature sank down under his burnoose.

The man looked up and about him like one who hears a whispering in the sky. Then he turned his horse and rode on slowly in the wake of the procession. He followed it east into the Rue Muski.

The horse picked its way along, careful to avoid the exhausted madmen who lay everywhere. The rider gave the horse no attention. He rode with the reins slack in his fingers.

As the Rue Muski entered the Neure, the horse, to avoid a camel, stepped on the caftan of an exhausted dervish, lying in a heap like a relaxed dead man. The horse barely touched the garment, but the dervish, crazed creature beneath it suddenly rolled over and buried his teeth in the horse's leg above the fetlock. It was the quick, savage lunge of an infuriated dog. The horse bolted, and to keep him from going headlong into the crowd, the rider turned him into a side street.

But he could not master the maddened horse. The beast was wild; the iron bit clamped into its jaws as if cemented into a stone. As though infected by a virus, the horse was now as crazed as the drug-drunken dervish. Nevertheless, the horse did not get away.

He fought down the narrow street and out through the native quarter of the city, but the rider controlled him and, but for an accident, would have got him in hand. A water-skin had broken in the street, and when the plunging horse struck the wet earth he fell.

The thing all happened in a flash, and the man was thrown out of the saddle. As he arose a native servant in livery, banded him his helmet which had rolled into a neighboring doorway. A motor-car had stopped and a woman was out in the street beside him.

"Oh," she cried, "are you hurt?"

The voice had the soft liquid tones of some southern country.

He was not in the least hurt and hastened to say it.

The car was new and smart—the sort of wonderful thing one sees at eleven in the Rue de la Paix. The woman was extremely young, a mere girl, he thought, for the lines of her slim figure were not yet rounded out.

It was amazingly good in a suit of white Chinese silk heavy as duck and cut, in a half sporting style, with a plaited coat, belt and patch pockets, by a first-class London tailor.

The girl was blushing slightly. Her eyes, colored like the velvet ball of an Italian chestnut, were wide under the long lashes curling up.

"It was a nasty cropper," he said. "The horse went down like a shot. Fortunately the helmet got the blow."

And he pressed out the pieces of broken cork.

"I thought you were killed," she said. Then she turned toward the car. "Let me take you up."

He could not very well refuse and he got in. Besides, his horse was nowhere to be seen, and his ruined helmet would make him conspicuous in the street.

It was precisely sunset and from a thousand minarets the muezzin was calling out. The whole city was flaming pink, as though covered with the wings of innumerable flamingoes. The horse had fallen as it entered a great square before a mosque.

When they were seated they fell impulsively into a pleasant talk. The charming thing about the girl was her perfect freedom. There was not a pretense in her. She gave a thoughtless confidence. She was wholly absorbed in the thing she talked about.

Almost at once they were on a friendly footing, and the man found himself speaking of things which he had never before discussed with anybody—trifling, intimate things which touch life here and there.

She loved a far-flung and trumpet-vine, she said. If she could only see the trumpet-vine and hear the far-flung, she always became at once inexplicably happy, no matter in what mood. She tried to imitate the sound, putting on her lips.

"I THOUGHT YOU WERE KILLED," SHE SAID.

And he told her that a cock crowing in the afternoon strangely saddened him, like certain desolate landscapes that impressed the beholder with the end of all things. It made him unutterably lonely. He was not usually lonely, but that note, sounded in the sun, could change him like a witch word.

The motor car which had endeavored to enter a great boulevard crowded with natives, made one or two turns and finally stopped before a narrow, iron gate in a high wall studded with spikes. The driver explained that he could not reach the main entrance. The crowd was so strangely obstinate and would not make way for the car.

To go in with the girl seemed to the man inevitable. She offered a cup of tea and would send him on when the streets were opened. The crowds brought out by the sacred carpet would presently scatter.

Besides, in the fascination of her delightful chatter, he was seeing just then a slim little girl, mostly eyes, on the veranda of a big, old house in a southern state of America surrounded by magnolias through which you caught the glimpse of white-washed eubins.

She was lying down, with a foreign illustrated paper before her, writing a letter to a hero.

He could see every detail, so vivid was the narration. She kept putting back a vacant look of hair that constantly fell down. Her lips were stained with red paint from the penholder where she had chewed it over a difficult word, and her frock was drenched with ink where she had wiped her thumb.

He knew the worship of heroes at that age for he had a Latin grammar in which was pasted a picture of Nelson, finger pointed with halo, and he had a warm, bewildered feeling, as though the very day and hour of that fascinating time were restored.

Almost at once they were on a friendly footing, and the man found himself speaking of things which he

The place they entered was enclosed by the great wall set with spikes. It was native in its architecture outside, with a flat roof, but inside it was a white man's house, with a drawing-room on the second floor.

They saw no servant as they went in, although the house was lighted. In the drawing-room no one answered the bell, and the girl went out to discover the reason.

The concluding installment of this unusual story will appear in our next issue.

Twenty-four Years Ago

John Doyle's friends in Portsmouth were glad to learn of his coming to the front in the Spanish-American war. He was living in the south when the Maine was blown up, and coming as he did from Scioto county, he could not help but be patriotic, so he joined Co. L of the First Florida Rifles, as a private, but was promoted right up the line until he became a first lieutenant. He was connected with the Adams Express Company here for a number of years.

The members of Company II expressed their thanks to the people of Portsmouth for their kind and generous reception on the day of their arrival home, to the ladies of the Army and Navy League, for the elegant luncheon, to the Woman's Relief Corps, for the handsome bag, to the citizens again for the enthusiastic reception following the banquet, and to Manager Ralph Johnson, of the Grand Opera House.

A large pumpkin was on exhibition at Spry's drug store. The pumpkin, which weighed 105 pounds, was raised on the lands of A. T. Holcomb, near Scioto Furnace.

Here's hoping my experience will help the other fellow," said Lyman Jackson, 4025 Prairie Ave., Chicago, Ill., as he gave out the following statement regarding the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"Before taking Tanlac I was so run down that my day's work would leave me almost completely exhausted. My stomach was all upset and I had a bad spell of indigestion everytime I tried to eat anything. Headaches and nervousness troubled me all during the day and kept me awake hours every night.

"My stomach is in apple-pie order now and the nervousness and headaches are entirely gone. I have gained ten pounds and don't only feel fine, but my friends say they never have seen me looking better. Tanlac is simply great."

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I have a very good-looking, popular admirer and I like him, but my parents object to my going with him. He is a perfect gentleman and leaves a good impression on the minds of everyone after being in his company. My parents told him until a lady told my mother all the mean things she could think of about him. Do you think my parents should listen to this lady or let me go with him? I am sixteen.

MABEL.

I think your parents have your interests at heart and rather than have you go with someone who does not meet with their approval they are ready to listen to what is told them. Besides, they use their own judgment to decide what to believe and what not to believe. If they have decided against the young man, you may be sure that they are doing it for your own good. Try not to rebel against their judgment. At the age of sixteen you are too young to have an "admirer."

Dear Dolly—My husband is away six or seven evenings every week. He says he has to work, though I do not see why he should work so much.

When other men in the same business have to work only one or two nights a week. Anyway, I am terribly lonely and I like to go out with other folk. Don't you think it is all right for me to go to parties with other young married couples when my husband is away? His mother thinks it is dreadful and I know she talks about me because I have gone to parties without him once or twice.

LONELY WIFE.

There is no harm in your going to parties occasionally with other young married couples when your husband is away working. However, if you make a practice of going out without him while he works you will find that your interests are divided and you will grow away from each other. See if you cannot persuade him to go out with you one or two nights a week and then you will not find it so necessary to go out with other people to enliven your evenings. Do not let yourself be worried by anything that your husband's mother says about you.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Among certain African tribes, where polygamy is the custom and marriage laws are very lax, it is not infrequent for a chief to contract with a father for all his daughters rather than just one.

He may get three or four almost as cheaply as one, and since they serve as his slaves and do all the work in the fields as well as about the home, often it is decidedly advantageous.

Even the Orient

Now cleans teeth this new way

Do you know that careful people of some fifty nations are now brushing teeth in a new way? And largely by dental advice?

If you have not learned what that method means, make this test and see.

They combat film

This new way fights the film on teeth—that viscous film you feel.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs stains, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

It also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Most tooth troubles are due to film. So are most cloudy teeth. Under old methods very few escaped them, for no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat film.

Thus those two great natural tooth-protecting agents are given manifold power twice a day. Modern research proves those things essential.

New methods now

Dental science has long sought to solve the problem of that film. Two methods have been found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now dentists the world over are advising their daily use.

A new-type tooth paste has been created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film combatants.

Fights acids, too

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digester in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus those two great natural tooth-protecting agents are given manifold power twice a day. Modern research proves those things essential.

You see new beauty everywhere

Now millions use this method. You see the results wherever you look, in shining teeth which give to people new beauty and new charm. Those whiter teeth mean cleaner, safer teeth. They mean to those people a new dental era.

McHenry, Hopelessly Ill, Expresses Desire To Die At Old Home In Adams County

With no possible hope for recovery and with his life slowly ebbing away, Austin McHenry, famed major league ball player, was transferred from the Good Samaritan hospital, Cincinnati to his home at Blue Creek Tuesday, by ambulance.

Since undergoing an operation at the Queen City institution a few weeks ago for tumor of the brain the celebrated athlete has grown steadily worse from day to day and it was at his request that he was removed to his old home to die amid the scenes of his boyhood, as it is regarded as certain that his days are numbered and the end may come at any time.

Dr. O. H. McHenry, of Blue Creek, father of the ball player, stated Tuesday that his son's condition was extremely critical. He said that the patient's strength was slowly slipping away and that in addition to being paralyzed on one side entirely blindness was increasing.

SHOOTS HIS WIFE; THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Double Tragedy Enacted In The North End; Victims Had Been Having Trouble

Domestic trouble of about two years standing, which was thought to have been ended in the divorce court here Saturday when alimony was finally decided upon, culminated this morning in the murder of Mrs. Emma Scheid and the suicide of her husband, Adam Scheid, who fired the revolver shots that ended her life just a few seconds before he turned the gun upon himself. The fatal shooting took place in the house that had been their home for two years at 1213 Gay street about 9:45 o'clock. The bullets were well aimed for both people were dead when police arrived on the scene a short time after the shots had been heard by neighbors. The lifeless body of the wife was found in the ell room of the cottage while that of the husband was found in his own bedroom. Just how the shooting occurred will never be known but a good idea as to where they were when the shots were fired and what had taken place just before, was obtained from Mr. and Mrs. Francis Schoonover of 1211 Gay, who heard the couple quarreling this morning while Mr. Schoonover was on the porch and saw Mr. Scheid fire one shot into his head.

Neighbor Told To Make Arrest
Mr. Schoonover had called the police station when he heard the first two shots and heard Mrs. Scheid scream and was told by Desk Sergeant Tom Albrecht to go into the house and arrest Scheid. Schoonover was held back by his wife and also neighbors who told him it was dangerous but he finally got away from the crowd and got upon the front porch in time to see Scheid place the revolver to his right temple and fire. That was the fourth shot that had been heard and a second or two later, after Mr. Scheid had disappeared into his own bedroom the fifth shot rang out. Schoonover then turned and walked off the porch telling the crowd that it was all over and that the husband had killed himself.

Shooting Came As Big Surprise

A shooting was a shock to neighbors and relatives, for Mr. Scheid had been of a forgiving temper and had been helping his wife pack up her furniture so she could move it out of the house and put it in storage. Two empty half pint whiskey bottles on the dresser in his bedroom are thought to be one of the main causes of the shooting this morning. Last night his son, Carl Scheid, was with him and the aged man at that time never once mentioned his domestic trouble and had not been drinking whiskey this morning and while drunk-crazed shot his wife and then turned the gun upon himself.

Some light is thrown upon the quarrel leading to the shooting, by Mrs. Schoonover, who was in her backyard feeding a pet dog. The dog was near the kitchen of the Scheid home. While feeding the dog Mrs. Schoonover says she heard the couple quarreling and heard Mrs. Scheid exclaim "I married you because I was sorry for you." She says that Mr. Scheid then remarked "I married you to give you a home," and that he then said "Here's where the gun will take the place."

Mrs. Schoonover, after hearing the remark about the gun, went into her house and told her husband what she had heard and said that she feared there would be serious trouble. She had no sooner finished repeating what she heard than two shots rang out. Her husband ran to the telephone and called the police station and it was then that he was told to go over and arrest the man. Schoonover is an express company employee and always carries a gun. With his gun in his hand he went out front on the sidewalk and was stopped by his wife, who begged him not to mix up in the trouble. Several neighbors had gathered on the front sidewalk by this time and they also warned Schoonover that it would be foolish for him to go into the house. With his gun Schoonover felt that he could handle the situation and leaped over the front fence just as a third shot was fired. By the time he got upon the porch and to the front door, which was open, the fourth shot was fired by Scheid, who was then standing in the narrow hallway between the ell room and the man's bedroom. Before Schoonover could step in the door, Scheid had disappeared into his own room and fired again. Schoonover heard his body fall and then turned and walked from the porch. He claims that he could have probably saved the man from killing himself had his wife and the neighbors not stopped him on the sidewalk.

Woman's Body In Plain View

The front door of the house opening from the ell room onto the porch was wide open and Mrs. Scheid's body lay on the floor against the north wall just a few feet back from the door. It was in plain view of the crowd that quickly formed on the sidewalk. Officer Theodore Brannham had arrived on the scene by that time and persons outside warned him to be careful when he entered the house for they were not sure that Scheid was dead and he might be in another room ready to fire on anyone who came in.

Officer Brannham walked in and looked into the bedroom, where Mr. Schoonover said he thought Scheid's body would be found. A step into the hall gave the officer a view of the man's bedroom, and just inside the door, with his head in a pool of blood, lay Scheid with a bright silver plated revolver between his feet. Two empty shells were also found and Brannham took them and the gun after examining the gun and finding that it contained one empty cartridge. Coroner J. D. Hendrickson was then called.

The officers after glancing around the house and hearing the story told by Mr. and Mrs. Schoonover came to the conclusion that Scheid probably drew the gun while they were quarreling in the kitchen and that the wife ran into the "ell" room and toward the door when he fired. The bullet must have hit a fatal spot for the wife fell over against the wall, the body sliding down to the floor with her head towards the open door. She lay on her left side with a small pool of blood under her head. The examination of her body at Daehler's morgue showed that she was shot twice in the body, the blood about the head coming probably from a hemorrhage.

One shot entered near her heart and came out her back. The bullet was found in her clothes. The other shot entered her left side and came out her right side, this bullet being found.

Scheid Shot Self Only Once, Is Belief

Scheid is thought to have shot himself only once. A more careful examination was to be made of the bodies late this afternoon by Coroner J. D. Hendrickson. The man's head and face were covered with blood and as there are two holes in the head it is possible that he shot twice into his head.

It is thought that the bullet that ended his life entered near the right temple and came out near the top of the head. Four empty cartridges and four bullets have been found but neighbors claim five shots were fired. It is possible that another empty shell was found about the house.

Three bullets were found in the man's bedroom. Two were covered with plaster and one with blood, but it is possible that one of the two covered with plaster might have passed through the man's head and then struck the wall. There are two marks in the room where one or two bullets struck. Both are in the corner of the room opposite from where the man's body was found and it looked at first as if he was sitting on the edge of the bed when the shot was fired that struck the ceiling and then glanced and hit the sidewalk near the ceiling. Two of the bullets were found on the south side of the bedroom near the dead man's feet and the other near the foot of the bed near the man's left hand or head. Officer Tom Haley picked up this one bullet while Officer Schroeder picked up the other two. Three good cartridges were found in an open dresser drawer in the man's bedroom.

Bodies Are Taken To The Morgue
After Coroner Hendrickson examined the bodies and the police officers had inspected the house, Daehler was called and both bodies were removed to the morgue. The house was left in charge of a son Carl Scheid who was working at the Sully factory when notified of the shooting.

Persons curious to see where the bodies were found crowded into the house and it was with difficulty that they could be made to get out so the house could be locked up.

Mrs. Scheid had breakfast this morning at the home of Mrs. Charles Schoonover 1206 Gay street. Mrs. Schoonover claims she told Mrs. Scheid she had better stay away from the house but says that Mrs. Scheid remarked that her husband had never been mean to her and had been in good spirits when she last talked with him. She then went to her home and started getting things in shape for the furniture truck that was to move her household effects to a place of storage. The truck had been there and had taken most of the furniture away when the shooting occurred. The carpets are all down and all that is left is a bookcase in the front room and a cedar chest in her bedroom. The carpets belonged to Scheid as did also the bookcase. He had a new brass bed put into his room yesterday giving his wife the bedroom furniture, which she claimed belonged to her.

The shooting was a great surprise to neighbors for they knew he had been busy at home helping her pack her things ready for storage. He remained away from his work yesterday to help about the house so that the furniture would be ready for the storage people this morning. This spirit shown by Scheid, notwithstanding his wife had secured a divorce and alimony is what caused the neighbors to forget any fears that they might have held that there would be serious trouble.

Relatives of Scheid claim that the domestic trouble of the couple started a couple of weeks after they were married. Mrs. Scheid was Mrs. George Raymond who lived next door to the Scheid home. According to relatives Mrs. Scheid wanted the husband to sign over some of his property to her and when he refused her demands the trouble started.

Mrs. Scheid Was Born In Quincy, Kentucky.
Mrs. Emma L. Veach Scheid, who was shot and killed by her husband was born at Quincy, Ky., November 14, 1870. She was a daughter of the late Francis M. and Martha Veach long residents of Quincy, Ky. She was married to Scheid over two years ago. Mrs. Scheid is survived by the following sisters and brothers, Mrs. Ida Damm of Marion, O., Mrs. Cora Barnett of Portsmouth, Mrs. Zella Yeagle, Marion, O., J. B. Veach and Harry of Fifth street, Portsmouth, Sidney of Indiana Harbor, Ind., and Charles and Arthur of Bantockport, Iowa.

Chinese Situation Quiet
AMONG CHINA, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—The local situation is improved slightly, though still unsettled, and uncertain. The Bank of China and other large Chinese banks have moved from the city to the foreign settlement at Kiangsu for protection. American, British and Japanese gun boats remain guarding foreign interests.

The body of Mrs. Scheid will this evening be removed to the home of her brother, J. B. Veach of 2031 Fifth street, where the funeral services will be conducted probably Thursday.

Scheid Was Born In Germany
Adam Scheid was born in Germany and came to this country when a young man. He had resided in Portsmouth many years as for over 20 years he was a valued employee of the Wait Furniture company, having charge of this firm's shipping room in addition to doing special cabinet work. His first wife died about six years ago. To this union four children were born, three of whom survive as follows: Mrs. Kate Sisler, of 918 Fifth street, Henry of 2039 Seventh street and Carl of Third and Sinton street. Mr. Scheid also leaves one brother in Germany.

Mr. Scheid was well known in the city and was a man honest as the day is long. He was industrious and a good provider to his family. Most of his residence here was on Gay street near Thirteenth.

Brother Had Premonition Sister Would Get Shot

I told Emma last night that she had better not try to take her household goods away this morning, as it would mean trouble," J. B. Veach, a brother of the dead woman told a Times man in the Daehler morgue this morning. "I had a premonition that Emma might get shot and told her last night. She was to have been at our house for dinner today and my wife was preparing the meal when she heard that Emma had been shot and killed. Several months ago her husband hit her over the head with a chair and she was so badly hurt that she was laid up for several weeks.

Many Call To View Bodies
As soon as the news of the double shooting spread over the city many persons called at the Daehler morgue to view the bodies of the victims. Both had resided here many years and were well known.

Coroner Predicted Two More Fatalities
"I never saw it fail but what shooting affrays run in three," Coroner Hendrickson said Tuesday after learning of the murder and suicide this morning. "As soon as I learned that Roy Hall had shot and killed Curtis Lyons of Jackson Fork yesterday I remarked that we would have two more shooting affrays and that is exactly what occurred this morning."

CHINESE REJECT PROPOSED LOAN

PEKING, Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—The lower house of parliament today voted as valid on the ground of irregularities an agreement for a proposed loan of six million pounds sterling by a group of German and Austrian financiers negotiated before the World War. The house also voted to impeach Lo Wen-Kan, the minister of finance who is under arrest on a charge of receiving a personal commission in connection with the intended loan.

Lo Wen-Kan, whose imprisonment Sunday caused a sensation in the capital, has refused to accept release on bond or recognizance. He declares he will remain in custody until the charges have been sifted. The house of representatives voted to take action against Wu Ching-Lian, speaker of house for alleged usurpation of powers of the judicial authorities in the causing of Lo's arrest.

Says Fascisti Have Plenty Of White Shirts

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Perrinax, editorial writer of the Echo De Paris, in an article on the Near East peace conference at Lausanne relates that as he was leaving the opening session a man stopped him saying: "I'm Mussolini. You said I was surrounded at Terret by black shirts. Let me tell you, Sir, we wear white shirts and have got plenty of them."

Perrinax asserts that in reply to this he was only able to express the hope that the Italian premier might "long be able to preserve the peace in the impenetrable blue of his shirts." The writer describes the incident as illustrating how Mussolini "visibly is acquiring with his eye on posterity to whom he hopes his name will be handed down by historians."

CORONER SAYS LYKENS MURDER UNPROVOKED

Coroner J. D. Hendrickson, assisted by Dr. H. A. Schermerman, Monday held a postmortem examination over the body of Curtis Lykens, aged 21, who died from a wound inflicted by Roy Hall, aged 18, who occupies a cell in the county jail and faces a second degree murder charge as a result of the fatal shooting, which occurred Sunday at Jackson Fork, in the eastern part of the county. They learned that the bullet after entering Lykens' shoulder ranged downward and severed the main artery leading to the heart. Lykens only lived a short time after the shooting and did not regain consciousness. He had lived in the Jackson Fork neighborhood for several years and was well liked by all who knew him.

Coroner Hendrickson said Tuesday that the murder was unprovoked and that eye-witnesses testified that when Lykens tried to shake hands with Hall, the latter whipped out his gun and shot Lykens. The shooting taking place in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Waddell at Jackson Fork.

When given a hearing Monday Hall claims the gun was accidentally discharged and he was held to the grand jury in the sum of $10,000.

Public Responding Nobly To Red Cross Call

Industrious with that kindly spirit that always characterizes the approach of Thanksgiving Day, the public is responding nobly to the call for volunteers to carry across the roll call for the American Red Cross Society, scheduled for next Sunday afternoon between the hours of two and five o'clock. President Edward T. Reed, of the local chapter, was all smiles when it was reported the ranks of volunteers were filling fast. He was especially pleased to know that several committees had volunteered to take charge of the county work, which will be conducted at the same time.

It is hoped to reach the 10,000 mark in the roll call. Persons acquainted with the work of the local Red Cross chapter are anxious to give to this worthy organization, whose motto, "Remember, We Never Forget" has been fulfilled thousands of times in this vicinity. One half of the money raised as a result of the roll call is expended here to assist the sick and unfortunate people whose needs would otherwise pass unheeded and unattended.

You can enroll for one dollar—a small sum, but one that will bring back to you many fold. Cards showing those who have subscribed will be distributed and will be placed in the front windows that people who pass may know you have done your part.

While many have volunteered to assist in the roll call next Sunday, there is room for more and if you care to enlist in this laudable work, kindly telephone the local Red Cross chapter, First National Bank Building, and you will be given an assignment.

Want Guarantees For Christians In Turkish Territory

LAUSANNE, Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen is in Lausanne in an effort to persuade conference delegates to include in the prospective treaty with Turkey guarantees for the protection of Greeks and Armenians in Turkish territory. Nansen is a Norwegian, and the refugees situation in the Near East will not be further aggravated. "Unless the minorities in Asia Minor are protected through the efforts of the Lausanne conference," Dr. Nansen said, "there seems to be nothing left for the unfortunate Greeks and Armenians. Greece has unanimously received both Greek and Armenian refugees up to the full point of its ability and they are being supported through American charity and the contributions of European countries."

Bulgaria has received all the refugees she can be expected to take care of. Charity cannot support these hundreds of thousands of unfortunate indefinitely. The Turks have not allowed males between 18 and 45 to leave, consequently the refugees are chiefly women and children and old men unfit for farm work."

Dr. Nansen said that in his opinion the Lausanne conference should provide for the exchange of Turks in Greece for Greeks in Turkey.

Totes Pistol After K. K. K. Warning

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Hubert C. Clay, of Colorado Springs, is totting a pistol about the Harvard campus because of receipt of a letter signed K. K. K. in which he was warned to leave the city. He told the police that while the note might seem a joke to outsiders such a message in Colorado would be deemed a serious matter. Advised by the dean to go unarmed, Clay said "Well, I'd rather shoot somebody than have my body tarred and feathered." Clay, a sophomore, and a descendant of Henry Clay, says he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, but withdrew because of its policy of "skulking in the dark."

Opera Co. Manager Faces $100,000 Suit

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(By the A. P.)—A $100,000 damage suit alleging defamation against Charles A. Shaw, business manager of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, caused a stir in local opera circles today. It was filed yesterday by Aurelio Fabiani, former violinist of the company. The action centers about an alleged promise made by Fabiani to Miss Lois Ewell, a soprano to obtain for her a contract with the opera company on payment of $50,000.

Both Shaw and Fabiani after the suit was filed, were quoted as relating previous statements. Shaw, against declaring that Fabiani made such an offer to Miss Ewell, while the opera's former violinist again denied the charge.

Former Ministers Are Voted Guilty

SOFIA, BULGARIA, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty-two former ministers were apparently voted guilty by 75 per cent of the voters at the national referendum held Sunday to determine whether they were responsible for embroiling Bulgaria in war without sufficient diplomatic preparation.

The ministers of the Tadeslavoff cabinet were not included in the judgment. Trial of the latter for involving Bulgaria in the World War has been in progress for more than a year.

THROWS VICTIM OVER CLIFF

WACO, TEXAS, November 21.—(By the Associated Press)—Grady Shipworth, aged 19, was shot and killed and his young woman companion attacked last night near "Lovers' Leap" on the Bosque River, near Waco. The young woman is in a hospital. According to reports to the police, the assailant was a negro who held up the automobile in which the couple were riding, and who after stopping Shipworth shot him and threw his body over a thirty foot cliff.

The negro later threw the girl over the cliff.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $1.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with homemade sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

So far the year of 1922 has been the most successful year that we have ever enjoyed in the city of Portsmouth.

To celebrate this occasion we have decided to play Santa Claus by eliminating our profit on all toys and merely add just enough to the actual cost to cover freight and delivery expense.

YOU HAD BETTER COME EARLY as our stock will not last long at these prices.

Highlights

form or another. The net loss to the United States treasury—sums actually taken therefrom in this government operation, averaged approximately $16,000,000 per month during the year prior to the assumption of responsibility by the present administration.

A constant warfare on this loss of public funds, and the draft to service capable business management and experienced operating directors have resulted in applied efficiency and economies. It is very gratifying to report the diminution of the losses to $4,000,000 per month, or a total of $50,000,000 a year, but it is intolerable that the government should continue a policy from which so enormous a treasury loss is the inevitable outcome. This loss, moreover, attends operation of less than a third of the government-owned fleet.

Seeks Diminution Of Burden

It is not therefore a question of adding new treasury burdens to maintain our shipping; we are paying these burdens now. It is not a question of contracting an outlay to support our merchant shipping, because we are paying already. I am not asking your authorization of a new and added draft on the public treasury.

I am appealing for a program to diminish the burden we are already bearing.

Must Maintain Flag On Seas

When the question is asked, why the insistence for the merchant marine act now, the answer is apparent. Waiving every inspiration which lies in a constructive plan for maintaining our flag on the commercial highways of the seas, waiving the prudence in safeguarding against another $2,000,000,000-madness if war ever again impels us have the unavoidable task of wiping out a $50,000,000 annual loss in operation and losses aggregating many hundreds of millions in worn out, sacrificed or scrapped shipping. Then the premise limitation, the admission that the United States—our America, once eminent among the maritime nations of the world—is incapable of asserting itself in the peace triumphs on the seas of the world. It would seem to me doubly humiliating when we own the ships and fill in the ports and capacity to turn their backs toward the masts of the world. This problem cannot longer be ignored, its attempted solution cannot longer be postponed. The failure of congress to act decisively will be no less disastrous than adverse action.

Three Courses Of Action

Three courses of action are possible and the choice among them is no longer to be avoided.

The first is constructive—enact the pending bill under which, I firmly believe, an American merchant marine, privately owned and privately operated, but serving all the people and always available to the government in any emergency, may be established and maintained.

The second is obstructive—continue government operations and attending government losses and discourage private enterprise by government competition under which losses are met by the public treasury, and witness the continued losses and deterioration until the colossal failure ends in sheer exhaustion.

The third is destructive, involving the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations and the confession of our impotence to the world in general and our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

A choice among the three is inevitable. It is unbelievable that the American people or the congress which expresses their power will consent to surrender and destruction.

Urges Constructive Alternative

I have come to urge the constructive alternative, to reassert an American will. I have come to ask you to relieve the responsible administrative branch of the government, from a program upon which failure and hopelessness and staggering losses are written on every page, and let us turn to a program of assured shipping to serve us in war and to give guaranty to our commercial independence in peace.

I challenge every insinuation of favored interests and the enrichment of the special few at the expense of the public treasury. I am, first of all, appealing to save the treasury. Perhaps the unlimited bestowal of government aid might justify the apprehension of special favoring, but the pending bill, the first ever proposed which carries such a provision automatically guards against enrichment or perpetuated bestowal.

Should Be American Viewpoint

Ours should be the viewpoint from which one sees American carriers at sea; the dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war. Some of the costly lessons of war must be learned again and again, but our shipping lesson in the World War was much too costly to be effaced from the memory of this or future generations.

Frankly, I think it loftier statesmanship to support and commend a policy designed to effect the larger good to the nation than merely to record the too-hasty impressions of a constituency. Commercial eminence on the seas, ample agencies for the promotion and carrying of our foreign commerce, are of no less importance to the people of the Mississippi and the Missouri valleys, the great northwest and the Rocky Mountain States, than to the seaboard states and industrial communities building inland a thousand miles or more.

It is a common cause, with its benefits commonly shared. When people fail in the national viewpoint and live in the confines of community selfishness or narrowness, the sun of this republic will have passed its meridian and our larger aspirations will shrivel in the approaching twilight.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown during the sickness and death of our dearly beloved son and brother Hughie Wise and especially do we thank the minister for his comforting words; also the friends for the donation of beautiful flowers.

FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS, Dear brother thou hast left us. Joining loved ones gone before. Soon we too shall seek their presence. On that happy golden shore.

But how lonely is home without thee, How we'll miss thee from thy chair. But we know thou art sweetly resting In God's house so free from care.

So farewell, dear, lovely brother. For a few days all it be. Till again we are all united In God's grand company.

Joseph Bust

A letter just received by John Bust, 305 Front street, from his native land of Germany, advised him of the death of his brother, Joseph Bust, which occurred Oct. 10.

Mr. Bust was 70 years old and he was the postmaster general of the kingdom of Bavaria for many years prior to his demise, having entered the postal service during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, when he was forced to leave his studies for the priesthood and was drafted into the country's mail department. He advanced rapidly and it was only a few years until he was elevated to the post of Bavarian postmaster general, which position he filled with great credit until his demise.

A number of the older German citizens of the city were acquainted with Mr. Bust, including Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Burth, Sr., of 821 Second street, who visited him while touring that country a few years ago.

The postmaster general and his brother of this city were reared together on a large farm near Newmarket and the land is still owned by the family.

Mr. Bust died at Oberphalz, where he had lived for many years.

COACHES TALK IN FANCY FIGURES

By NEA Service
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—There are days of frenzied finance in the athletic circles. The huge crowds that have been attending the big games in all sections of the country have brought in big dividends. Football coaches, who are successful, talk in fancy figures when they discuss their services.

President Baker of the Philadelphia National League club, was asked up to this fact recently when he conferred with Hugo Bezdek, who managed his fall-end ball club. Bezdek, who formerly managed the Athletics, is now director of athletics at Penn State. He has been very successful.

New York Teams To Be Bitter Rivals In Future

By GEORGE CHADWICK
Special Correspondent of the Times
(Copyright, 1922)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The cordial relations, if there were any such, which existed between the New York American and National League clubs when both teams played at the Polo grounds are dragging their ankles and slipping rapidly out to sea. The baseball boys from Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland and other major league cities are meditating profoundly on the wisdom of sitting at the table to a game of baseball against opponents with heavy bank rolls and calculating on the probability of profiting their stacks against the old game of raise and double raise.

"Hope I do and wish I could be as good a champion as you've been," the proud little "Mike" said. "There is little hope for the continuation of the hope or the fulfillment of the wish. Not that young Walker did not earn the decision which gave him the championship and not that he is not a fine chap, but the task of filling the shoes of grand old Jack Britton is too much to expect of any of the modern school of boxers or fighters."

Britton was one in a thousand and thousands come in revolutions of generations. The former champion may not compare to the rough style of bruising predecessors who made names before him, but he was first in the school of scientific boxing. If the art of self-defense is to be accepted as something more than an aid for prize-fighting, Britton was one of the greatest of all times because he was a great master at it.

Walker happened along when age had taken so much fire and energy from the veteran champion that he was ready to be dethroned by the first good youngster who could not be outwitted and outkicked. Walker just happened along.

In a division that is rapidly swelling with promising youngsters, Mike Walker, has anything but an easy road ahead of him if he chooses to stay out of a shell and become a real fighting champion, something that is a rarity in these commercial days.

Any young champion who has George Ward, Dave Shale, Andy Thomas and several others ahead of him has no long time title on the crown ahead of him, unless he has a lot of stuff.

There is also a young sensation out in Cincinnati who has never appeared in the east—Billy Ryan, who broke into the game as a sparring partner with Britton. Before his debut, Britton rated Ryan as the most dangerous man in the class.

Since the fall of the "Old Master," whose skill had them all leery, there is to be expected a rush of 140 pound lightweight into the class.

Low Teller, the Philadelphia southpaw, has already announced his intention to invade the welterweight class and with the opportunity of making the weight he wants, Teller is one of the most dangerous young men in the ring.

Punchy Leonard, the lightweight champion, not only wants to stretch out into the welterweight division, but he has already tried out, unsuccessfully as it turned out, in an unsatisfactory bout with Britton.

HOPPE SCORES

FOURTH VICTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(By The Associated Press)—Willie Hoppe, former champion, scored his fourth straight victory Monday in the International 152 ball billiard championship by defeating Erich Hagenbacher, German star, in a close match 500 to 462. The result assured Hoppe, who has but one more match to play, of at least a tie in the tournament.

Hoppe gained his victory in a match filled with a strange melody of poor and uncertain cueing. Hoppe had an average of 22.30 with high runs of 117, 92 and 80.

Hagenbacher made two desperate efforts to win and but for wrong selection of shots might have done so. His average was 22 and his runs 100-86 and 87. Hagenbacher has not won a match in five starts.

SEEKS REINSTATEMENT

FT. WORTH, TEX., Nov. 21.—Dick Kerr, former star pitcher of the Chicago American League White Sox, in a message received by friends here today, stated that he has applied for reinstatement, following a year's holdout because of a salary difference and expects Judge Landis to permit him to rejoin the club at their training camp this spring.

How Come, Bill?

If the Jackson team had used a few more Tank players Sunday the score would have been 30 to 0 in favor of the Smoke House team. It was a sin and a shame the way Rev. Brooks and Schaeffler were bowled over Sunday. Wonder why the latter cannot break into the Tank line-up?

Joe Wood Is Slated For Head Coach

By NEA Service

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 21.—Joe Wood of the Cleveland American League team who has been signed to coach the Yale pitchers will eventually have entire charge of baseball at that institution.

Yale, at the present time, is not using the professional system of coaching in baseball. Tommers, who coached the Yale team last year, was a former varsity player. While Yale had excellent success under his direction, it is understood that his business demands are such that he cannot give so much time to Yale athletics.

It is understood that Yale is desirous of having a high-class professional athlete take charge of baseball, as Bill Clarke at Princeton, Jack Shattley at Harvard and Jeff Tesreau at Dartmouth. This trio of former big league stars have met with great success. Bill Clarke has been in charge of baseball at Princeton for about 20 years.

Yale feels that Joe Wood is just the type of player desired and that he will fill the bill. Report has it that Wood has signed a three-year contract to coach the pitchers. It would occasion no great surprise if before that contract expired he was appointed head coach.

Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen." Ardena Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Ruth Roland, the dashing, daring queen of Pathé serials, will introduce her new chapter thriller to patrons of the Ardena Theatre Wednesday, Thursday. The first episode is "The Log Jam." In three reels.

A thrill is introduced in the opening scene, with Miss Roland as the heroine, Ruth Roland, being dragged from the path of a falling giant tree. In this episode the romantic element starts with a betrothal of convenience and ends with a broken engagement.

The plot and action revolve around Ruth's efforts to secure an option on a timber tract for the Timber Trust. Squatters occupying this land try to prevent her delivering the option, for they do not trust the Squatters' promise not to disturb the squatters. The final thrill is tremendous, showing Ruth crashing down a steep and sharply winding track on a runaway freight.

How Many Nights Should A Girl Be Out?

That seems to be a question that is bothering lots of girls as well as some of their parents, and well it might. Last week was a busy week, in fact so much doing with three or four dances, club meetings and a number of N. B. parties with W. M. on the side, made a particularly busy week and this week no doubt will be just as busy, but what I started to tell you was, I have another lot of "the Dainty" patent colt sandal, made with satin embossed quarter and carrying that new Spanish heel—same price as before, six-fifty, and silk hose are still in style.

OPTIMISM WELL FOUNDED

A prominent clergyman recently "deplored the present attitude of people toward the more serious matters of life." He held that "there is lacking generally that consideration of the larger duties and responsibilities of life which obtained in the past and should now, if perplexing problems reach satisfactory solution." "People seem," he said, "to have little time to devote to their minds and less to their souls with the result that they are becoming incapable of deep thought and feeling." Such a pessimistic view is not without some foundation.

So far as this country is concerned the World War left peculiar results. Abundance of money easily obtained encouraged inconsiderate expenditure. People were able to "afford" many things which they never had before. Many luxuries became necessities, and ideas developed which were more selfish and ambitious desires than reasonable economic propositions. There was an inflation of living as well as of values—an overestimate of individual importance in business, commerce and industry. The natural result of all this was loss of correct proportions, of true relations, both leading to underestimation of "the larger duties and responsibilities of life."

Another result of the World War in this country was the disruption of the morals of the people. With money plentiful and easily obtained, it was employed for pleasures and indulgences most freely, too frequently by people who did not know how to use it. Such people ran riot in those excesses which lead downward, and had not prohibition restrained them to some extent, they would soon have outdistanced the French in these matters. People living in the cities influenced people living in the country towns until everywhere there was thoughtless gratification of the sensual regardless of future consequences. Under such circumstances there could hardly be "deep thought and feeling."

History repeats itself, however. Only a cursory review is necessary to convince that the pendulum may swing ever so far toward the superficial but swings back toward the serious equally as far. Sooner or later people come to an intelligent awakening and correct their attitude. Universities, colleges, and schools play important parts, teaching as they must fundamental principles of economics and sociology disregard of which leads to confusion. The home also is all-important, for from its training should result start of life in the right direction. Finally, the press, whose self-preservation depends on the public having a right attitude toward the more serious matter of life, is not without responsibilities.

There is ground for pessimism only if vision is limited. The broader view, the longer perspective, should be sought. What is needed in this country today is optimism which sets example, inspires thought, gains confidence, and enlists emulation. Such optimism only is reasonable, for there is not deliberate abuse of money, studied misuse of it—merely ignorance of how best to use it accentuated by long-delayed gratification of desires mainly resulting from envy and prejudice. People in this country still contrast with those of European countries in intelligence, in moral standards, and in their religious inclinations. They're simply bad "their fling"—that's all, and are ready to get down to former habits and customs, for they have learned their lesson and will turn back to substantial social and moral relations, with very little encouragement.

PROSPERITY RETURNING

THE most recent financial reports from New York leave no doubt of the rapid upward trend in commerce and industry. The weekly trade reviews, bubbling over as they are with optimism, have more encouraging things to say than at any previous period of the present year.

It is always a healthy sign when business and industry reach a point at which more funds than are immediately available are needed for the carrying on of their operations, because in that case the operations themselves must be on a greater scale. That corporations and individuals have been unloading their bond holdings for the purpose of securing ready cash to finance increasing business is evidenced by the lower price levels obtaining in the bond market, and that more money is in demand from various other sources is proved by the hardening tendency of interest rates. On the other hand, that there is plenty of money seeking investment is obvious from the fact that the new government 4-1/2 per cent loan, big as it was, was more than three times oversubscribed. The conditions are therefore ideal—expanding industry demanding more money and vast sums at hand ready to meet the demand.

Another satisfactory feature of the situation is found in the high prices prevailing for cotton and grain. Apparently the farm districts of the country will have a golden harvest in a double sense, and prosperity for the farmer, generally means prosperity for the nation. It is significant in this connection that, while general cargo for shipment abroad has not yet been advanced materially, due probably to slow rail deliveries, traffic in grain shows a marked forward movement in quantity to the extent even of putting up the ocean transportation rates by 2 or 3 cents per 100 pounds.

With industry and agriculture coming on apace, there is every indication that the United States has already entered on an era of wonderful business development and of prosperity that may well prove to be unexampled.

If the jingoes keep on talking and planning for the "next war," they may not have long to wait.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Jimmy O'Connell, outsider for the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, who is to report to the New York Giants next year, is ill with scarlet fever at his home at Rossmore Springs, California. It was learned here today O'Connell was sold to the Giants for $75,000.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—This is the story of Mike Goldreyer, a Broadway theatre office boy. It may read like the Burth Direct, but to me it is the most interesting yarn that has come out of the Roaring Forties in a number of years.

Mike is a young Jewish boy who took pictures around to newspaper shops for the press agent. He had an appealing manner—rather shy but underneath a trace of firmness. He wanted to become a theatrical producer. He did take one play out on the road. It was Broadway's worst " flop."

It failed in one night, leaving him with $11 and seven overcoats of the wardrobe. He came back to his office boy job and peddled pictures again. The other week he produced "The Last Warning," a play that is a smashing hit, perhaps the biggest of the season.

How he did it is a lesson in grit. His first failure was a Broadway laugh. Actors and producers joshed him on all sides. No one would put up money for this dreaming boy. But Sammy Shipman, another East Side boy, was his friend. Shipman is now successful.

Goldreyer took the play to Shipman and asked him to write a note saying the play was a good one. Shipman did and Goldreyer quit his office boy job and began his fight to raise capital. He assembled his cast, selected the scenery and directed the rehearsals. Several times rehearsals stopped so Mike could raise more cash.

Between times he went down to the newspaper shops, with pictures of his own players—still shy and accepting the good natured jibes of the newspaper boys.

There came the opening night—the critics went out of sympathy and remained to see a bit of Broadway history making. As the audience roared its approval and passed out into the lobby going home, Goldreyer realized that he was no longer an office boy.

They found him two hours later in a darkened corner of the theatre. He was a little crumpled and forlorn. The dawn was breaking for him and he was greeting it with honest tears.

How unfair we are at times to youth and its enthusiasms. Mike Goldreyer seemed to me to be quite an impossible little upstart. I had the same feeling about his theatrical ability that I entertain for the Cherry Sisters. I laughed with the rest of the White Way wisecracks. And Mike at the end of his play said to me a bit wistfully: "I do hope the play pleased you." I walked out into the night heartily ashamed.

The captain of a great Atlantic liner is popularly supposed to be a supreme autocrat—the czar of his vessel. Yet when he comes into New York's harbor and a pilot is taken on at Sandy Hook his command is gone. The pilot is the absolute master. Incidentally the pay of captains is astonishingly small for the responsibilities they bear. Very few are paid more than $5,000 a year.

It may be a sour mood, but I seem to grow weary of the blasts in the New York newspapers that men are not finding religion in the churches. If not in the churches, where are they finding it? It seems to me to be in all the churches ready for the takers.

Another howl that is being made is that the treasury department sends out discourteous letters regarding income tax mistakes. I have a letter before me from W. R. Swafford, Chief of the section, regarding a discrepancy in my tax report made inadvertently. It is certainly as courteous and respectful as one could expect. The Land of Nod
From breakfast on thru all the day
At home among my friends I stay.
But every night I go abroad
Near into the land of Nod.

All by myself I have to go.
With none to tell me what to do—
All alone beside the streams
And up the mountain sides of dreams.

The strangest things are there for me.
Both things to eat and things to see.
And many frightening sights abroad
Till morning in the land of Nod.

Try as I like to find a way,
I never can get back by day.
Nor can remember plain and clear
The curious music that I hear.

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Have It Over With

An active churchman attends church services regularly, taking his young son with him. Usually the youngster makes no trouble, but on a recent Sunday the minister was waxing eloquent on the subject of the "Future State of the Church."

As his voice rose in power, and volume he made the refiners ring with the question: "I ask you what shall be the future glory of the church?" A brief pause for breath, and he continued: "I repeat, what shall be the future glory of the church?"

The young hopeful turned to his father said: "You tell him, daddy, and let's go."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegram.

A Double Cure

The overworked doctor rose reluctantly out of bed to answer his night-call, and was glad to hear that all that was wrong was that Mrs. Murphy's baby wouldn't go to sleep. He handed the excited father a powder and went back to bed.

Next morning he met Mr. Murphy and asked how the baby was.

"Fine, sir," That powder of yours did the trick.

"I'm glad of that. And did the baby get a good night's rest?"

"Sure, an' we don't know," was the reply. "We gave her a dose, an' it didn't make a wile of difference. She just went on howlin'." So the wife an' I just took the rest of it between us, an' went straight off to sleep, an' never heard the swale pet at all."

Be Pached

The following reply to a dun was actually received by a New Jersey firm:

No Cause for Complaint

An advertising manager who had gone south to look over a certain trade territory, became marooned in a country village for two days. The hotel, so-called, was extremely poor. Sunday evening the hotel owner's wife rang the bell hanging on a pole in the backyard. A stray dog, sleeping in the side yard, rudely awakened from his dreams, set up an awful howl.

The disgusted advertising man, after listening a moment, yelled:

"What are you howling about, you don't have to eat here!"
